T-GUIDE-GUIDING PEOPLE WITH LEARNING DIFFICULTIES

T-GUIDE is a new course on Guiding People with Learning Difficulties offered by FEG and the European Network for Accessible Tourism (ENAT) to qualified tourist guides.

This is the final outcome of an EU funded Leonardo project, with FEG at its heart, to develop a CPD (continuing professional development) course for qualified tourist guides.

Enhance your skillset and gain access to a rapidly increasing market for guides who can competently and sensitively work with this growing clientbase.

To achieve the certificate tourist guides need to complete 4 stages:

- 1) online learning in modules each with a final assessment,
- 2) a further written assessment requiring consolidation of the knowledge gained in the initial modules,
- 3) attend a one day interactive course and
- 4) within 6 months of the course set up and conduct a real tour with a group of people with learning difficulties and then provide client feedback and self-evaluation in a portfolio of evidence.

Stages 1 and 2 need to be completed to the required standard in order to be eligible to join the full day interactive course.

The intensive one day course, which is offered in Dublin, as part of the FEG European Meeting in Ireland, involves practicing the use of ETUL (easy to understand language), improving understanding of the functional and social aspects of disabilities and of the relevant EU legislation. You will participate in exercises on shared understanding of learning difficulties, developing access statements and accessible/inclusive tourism through universal design. You will develop refinements to your communication techniques and your tour planning skills.

Once you have successfully completed all four stages and are a certified T-GUIDE your name and area of qualification will be publicised on the FEG and ENAT websites.

Who should attend? ... Learning outcomes

All qualified tourist guides who would like to broaden their skills in this special niche market are eligible to register.

Only those, who have successfully completed the online learning and written assessment, will be eligible to attend the one day interactive course.

Completion of T-GUIDE stages 1 & 2 deadline is till the 15th September 2017 and after the course fee payment is done.
